The Beattyville Enterprise

Serving Lee County, Beattyville and the Three Forks area for 130 years

Thursday, October 10, 2013 Vol. 130, No. 13 50¢

Health center funding assured;
County has state's hightest tax rate

The Lee County Fiscal Court Monday authorized spending up to $185,000 in county funds toward the purchase of the downtown Peoples Exchange Bank building, which will become a new county health center.

Following the approval of that resolution, the court gave County Judge/Executive Steve Mays authority to establish a line of credit with Peoples up to that $185,000 amount for the project.

The court then approved a resolution accepting a $500,000 Appalachian Regional Commission grant for the project.

The building is being bought for $1.6 million. Renovation is estimated to raise the total cost of the project to $2.335 million.

County has highest rate in state

Obtaining the line of credit should not be a problem for the county because it has the highest property tax rate in the state at 47.8 cents per $100 of assessed value.

Other area counties and their 2012 county real estate tax rates were: Owsley – 14.5 cents per $100; Breathitt – 9.7; Estill – 7.9; Powell – 9.9; Wolfe – 7.6; and Perry – 9.5.

According to the Kentucky Department of Revenue's Office of Property Valuation, in 2010 (most recent numbers available) Lee's rate was 48.0 cents per $100. Next closest was Bracken County at 40.3 cents. Other than Lee, the highest that year in Eastern Kentucky was Harlan County at 32.2 cents. Jefferson County had a rate of 12.55 cents that year. Fayette County's was 8.0.

While county government has the highest rate for a county in the state, Lee County Schools has the lowest school rate in Kentucky. The next lowest is Wolfe County at 34.1 cents per $100 of assessed value.

Other business

In other business at Monday's regular monthly, the court agreed to a memorandum of agreement that allows Three Forks Regional Jail inmates to work along state highways. The agreement is with the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet.

County Treasurer Jodi Coldiron was given an annual raise from $24,481 to $28,080.

Stephen Combs of the EMT Ambulance Department was hired full time probationary at $8 an hour.

Bo Fox of the Road Department was raised from $8 an hour to $8.50 because of the end of his probationary period.

R. J. McIntosh, a Road Department mechanic, was raised from $10.35 an hour to $11 an hour.

Charlotte Hogan with the Sheriff's Office was transferred back to seasonal status.

Also, the court agreed to start having its regular meetings in the second floor courtroom at the courthouse starting in November.

Lee elementary schools best in the region

Lee County's two elementary schools lead the region in state testing scores, Southside Principal Steve Carroll told the Lee County School Board Tuesday night.

Carroll shared results of scores released last Friday. They showed that of the 18 elementary schools in the region, Southside Elementary scored 68 and Beattyville Elementary scored 64.3.

The other schools are from Breathitt, Wolfe, Jackson, Powell, Owsley and Estill counties. Their order of finish behind the two Lee County schools is: LBJ (Breathitt), Campton (Wolfe), Sand Gap (Jackson), Rogers (Wolfe), Tyner (Jackson), Clay City (Powell), Bowen (Powell), Highlands (Breathitt), McKee (Jackson), Marie Roberts (Breathitt), Stanton (Powell), Owsley (Owsley), Estill Springs (Estill), Rousseau (Breathitt), Red River (Wolfe) and West Irvine (Estill).

"Lee County should be proud," Carroll said.

He added that Southside's goal is to be a top five school each year.

Results of the state test scores were the highlight of the board's regular monthly meeting.

Superintendent James Evans, Jr., reported that the district showed "great growth" in moving from the 32nd percentile in the state to the 84th.

He commended the board for their support and efforts, and praised the students, faculty and staff of the district.

Programs Director Glenna Cummins shared ACT scores, and said that students have retaken the test and have scored higher.

"We have a lot to be proud of," she said.

Lee County Middle School Principal Karen Angel said that her school moved from the bottom 24th percentile in the state to the top 38.

High School Principal Mike Murray said, "We're proud of our students and staff.

He said that the school is in the top 20 percent of high schools in Kentucky, and that the school's graduation rate had improved by 20 percent.

He asked Teacher Danny Wright to speak on how the students have responded to the emphasis on college and career readiness.

"The kids kinda own it," Wright said. He said they want to achieve.

Also during the meeting, the board approved three proclamations: October 20-26 is Safe Schools Week; October 21-25 is School Bus Safety Week; and, October 14-18 is National School Lunch Week.

Director of Pupil Personnel Ray Shuler said that attendance at this point in the school year stands at 94.38 percent. That is just slightly below the 94.6 that was recorded at the same time last year.

He stressed that state funding is based on average daily attendance, and that since enrollment is down this year attendance is important.

Evans said that the district will have a booth set up in front of the PEP building during the Woolly Worm Festival.

The meeting ended with Board Vice-Chair Larry Burgess saying, "To all the staff, we're all proud of all the hard work that's been done."

CHAPTER 5

"Pa! Bonnie's sick!" I said, noticing something was wrong with the milk Bonnie the Brown Swiss was producing.

"Looks great to me," Pa replied after examining Bonnie and her milk.

"Bonnie's milk is white," I said. "Bonnie is a Brown Swiss. Her milk should be chocolate!"

Everyone, including Bunny the cat, giggled.

Then I asked, "Who milks the bull?" because I hoped it wasn't going to be Chloe or me.

No sooner had Granny and Pa stopped laughing from the "chocolate milk" comment than they were in a full-blown giggle again.

"You don't milk bulls, son," Pa said.

"Why is he here then?" Chloe asked, confused like I was.

"Well," Pa said as if he were searching for the right words, "a bull is a male cow who is a daddy. Male cows don't produce milk; it comes only from female cows who have had calves. So, except for Daddy Bull, we don't need bulls or steers, which are male cows who aren't dads. If a mama cow gives birth to a boy, once it's old enough, we sell it to a cattle farm. The cattle farmer uses it for beef, and we make a little money. It's a win-win situation."

As Pa stood up, he said, "I don't know about you, but I'm ready to count sheep."

"I'll help," I replied, grabbing my jacket. Granny giggled. "That's an expression meaning Pa's going to bed," she said, stopping me before I went outside to help Pa take inventory of the sheep. "And I suspect two little doggies are ready to count sheep too!"

If the milk was the best thing I had ever tasted, the featherbed was the best thing I'd ever slept on. Granny lifted Chloe and me onto the gigantic bed. As soon as she covered us with the colorful handmade patchwork quilt, we were snoozing – maybe even snoring. It had been a very enjoyable – and long – day, filled with lots of hard work, good food and many laughs. Chloe and I slept through the night. We never moved until we heard a rooster crow and smelled the most delicious bacon and pancakes. Using a step stool to crawl out of bed, we saw a note from Granny. "Good morning, doggies. Here are some things you'll need today." There were two long-sleeve plaid shirts, two pairs of bib overalls, two large straw hats, two red bandannas and a bottle of sunscreen.

Dressed, ready and doused in sun protection, we walked downstairs where Granny and Pa were waiting for us to eat breakfast.

We sat down, removed our hats and bowed our heads as Pa gave thanks for the food. Then Granny passed the delicious breakfast foods. "After the morning milking, feeding and chores, we'll visit a neighboring farm," Pa said.

"TerRUFFic!" we exclaimed. Granny had talked to our mom that morning while we were sleeping. She persuaded our parents to let us stay for a few days. We missed our family terribly but knew we would see them soon. Visiting another farm would be fun – and would help pass the time.

"Will we be milking cows here too?" I asked as we pulled into the driveway of Missus Farms later that morning.

"This is a beef cattle farm, son," Pa explained. "No milking going on here. Just like dairy farms, a beef cattle farm is another type of livestock farm. Livestock farmers raise cows, goats, sheep, pigs and other animals to eat or sell for others to eat. Kentucky is the largest cattle-producing state east of the Mississippi River. There are about 38,000 cattle farmers and more than two million cattle and calves here in our state. In fact, livestock and livestock products account for about half of Kentucky's farm income."

I was listening to Pa talk about cattle when I smelled the worst smell ever, like dead fish, rotten eggs, filthy socks and soured milk had been mixed together and left in the sun for three weeks. "P.U.! What is that smell?" I asked, covering my nose with one paw. Suddenly I realized the source of the putrid odor. Surely it wasn't what I thought it was!

A different view

By Betty Crabtree

The human mind is an amazing thing. I've often through that our minds are like the hard drive on a computer; 'whatever' is stored there has to be retrieved by going into 'a' file and then it is shown on a monitor or screen. I'm told that sometimes things 'pop up' unexpectedly. Now mind you, I'm somewhat computer illiterate. But let me give you another example. I have a satellite for my T.V. My T. V. is constantly bombarded by waves of both positive and negative information. So it is with out minds. The Holy Spirit is constantly broadcasting into our minds a still small voice humming in tune with God's positive truth found in the Bible. All the while, the world, the flesh and the devil are trying to transmit negative frequencies in an attempt to take over or dominate our minds.

There is an old saying, "You can't keep the birds from flying over your head, but you an sure keep them from building a nest in your hair." We can definitely loose the thoughts we allow to linger in our minds.

A mind tuned into negative, unjust, inaccurate, untrue, critical, judgmental and shameful thoughts will inevitably experience fear, worry, anxiety, bitterness, addiction, outbursts of anger, depression and death.

It is said by some that there is a segment of society that is fixated on death, such as violent T. V., games, movies, the walking dead, zombies and vampires.

There is a verse of scripture in the Living Bible Romans 8:6 that says, "Following after the Holy Spirit leads to life and peace, but following after the old nature leads to death. But a mind tuned into true, honorable, right, lovely, pure, excellent, and positive thoughts will experience love, joy, peace, patience, gentleness, kindness, faithfulness, goodness, control of self and abundant life in Christ"

The moral of this little story" Be careful what your receiver is tuned to; you have a choice.

One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh: but the earth abideth forever.—Ecclesiastes 1:4

Have faith in the Lord, who hath given us the very air we breathe.

Preacher Bob's Korner

By Billy Davis

MESSENGER

SENT

A messenger is "the apostle, messenger, he that is sent…a commissioner of Christ." (Strongs Concordance) If he is not sent he is not an official messenger. If he is not commissioned he is not, again, an official messenger. He must be sent.

Jesus came willingly to His work on earth, but yet the scriptures tell us, "But when the fullness of time was come, God sent forth His Son, made of a woman." (Ga. 4:4)

Paul says, "And how shall they preach except they be sent?" (Romans 10:15)

SET APART

The messenger of the Lord is set apart. He is not only sent, he is set apart. As a soldier is set apart, so is he. He is in a real battle. He is on duty day and night.

"Rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for him, fret not thyself because of him who prospereth in his way, because of the men who bringeth wicked devices to pass." (Psalms 37:7)

SEEKER

Now the messenger must seek the message he is to deliver. He must hook up with his source. The message is always relevant. It is geared to the need of the hour – time. He must find what is needed.

There is a story of a messenger who ran many miles, but on reaching his destination, he discovered he had forgotten his message. He was a messenger without a message. It takes some seeking on the part of the messenger.

My Little Butterfly
© Barbara Ann Rogers
Today a little butterfly flew by me.
I thought to myself where have you been little butterfly.
You come into this world as a cocoon all by yourself and blossom into this beautiful butterfly and fly off to see the world.
What you don't realize little butterfly as you flutter through your days is how you touch those around you in your soft gentle way.
You don't even realize the wonder and awe you create around you.
she fluttered her wings toward me as if she was waving good-by as she headed towards the horizon.
She looked very happy and content as she went on her way, as if to say to me "Don't worry I'll be okay".
I was sad to see her go for she had touched my heart in such a way that I knew my life would never be the same.
She had left an imprint of all the beauty life has to offer.
I knew each time I looked at another butterfly or horizon I would remember our moment in time when it was only her and I.
I knew I would be a better person all because this little butterfly flew by me one bright sunny day.

K-PREP celebration

Haley Tipton

Hallie A. Land

By: Hallie Land & Haley Tipton

Friday, October 4, Lee County Middle School students were treated to a nice surprise. Principal, Mrs. Karen Angel and staff members showed their appreciation by rewarding students for their efforts and improved performance on state testing. The afternoon began with Mrs. Angel going over the test results for the past three years. After the Power Point, students were given a choice of watching a movie, playing basketball, board games, or just socializing with friends.

Students and staff had plenty to celebrate. Last year, Lee County Middle School student's K-Prep scores went through the roof in comparison to the previous two years. In previous years, LCMS was in the 14th percentile (2010-2011), then the 24th percentile (2011-2012), and in the most recent school year of 2012-2013, we were in the 62nd percentile. This means that our scores were better than 62% of the schools in Kentucky. Lee County Middle School is now 3rd in the region. We are very proud of this big improvement and hope we can score even better this year! All the students, staff and parents deserve a big pat on the back for a job well done.

LCMS Rocks K-PREP!

By: Ellen Jennings and DeAnna Deaton

Ellen Jennings

DeAnna Deaton

On September 27, 2013, the Kentucky Department of Education released the 2012-2013 K-PREP Test results. When comparing Lee County Middle School's score with other middle school scores in the region our school ranked in the top 3. Furthermore, the Lee County Middle School far exceeded the state goal set at 49, by scoring 56.9.

Over the past three years, the middle school has shown a steady increase in scores. In the school year 2010-2011, the middle school placed in the 14th percentile. The following year's placement was in the 24th percentile. This year, the middle school placed in the 62nd percentile.

So what does it mean for LCMS to be in the 62nd percentile?

- We scored better than 62% of all middle schools in Kentucky.
- We are in the top 38% of all middle schools in Kentucky.
- We moved from the bottom 25% or ¼ to the top 38%.

When looking at regional scores for middle schools, we found Lee County Middle School ranked third in our region when comparing our scores to the other middle schools. Listed below are the counties and their ranking for their middle schools.

1. Breathitt – 62.3
2. Wolfe – 58.8
3. Lee – 56.9
4. Powell – 55.5
5. Estill – 49.7
6. Owsley – 48.1
7. Jackson – 41.8

What does it take to be a proficient school?

- The cut off score to be a "proficient school" is 58.7.
- Our score was 56.9.
- We were only 1.8 points away from being a proficient school.
- Our goal for next year is to be a proficient school.

Lee County Middle School Principal, Mrs. Karen Angel is so very proud of her staff and students for accomplishing this big jump. During an interview with Mrs. Angel, she stated, "Students and staff have worked very hard to reach our goal on K-PREP. I would just like to say once again to the students and staff, Congratulations! You are the best! Way to go LCMS!"

Tomorrow's Leaders Today

Submitted by Chuck Caudill

Nick Bowman, Matthew Dylan Williams, Kennedy Lambert, Michaela Fox, Emily Griffin, and Emily Evans

There are times when all the elements come together and new leaders rise up to meet the needs of a community. It takes the support of the community and the desire to create positive change, but it also requires boundless energy, flexible minds, and the ability to share a message which is accessible to a majority of the population.

The community did their part. Judge Mays and the Lee County Fiscal Court, the Anti-Substance Abuse Program Council and People Encouraging People, provided funding and a drug awareness program (Here's Looking at You). The school system provided the resources and leadership to implement it.

The Principal's of Southside and Beattyville Elementary Schools, Steve Carroll and Maureen Patrick, have worked with the community agencies to find the time to implement the program with a minimum of impact on the teaching day. Their efforts and vision were key to creating a team for each school to act as mentors for the students.

The mentors are all confident, intelligent, able to communicate effectively with a broad range of constituents, and enthusiastic. They also happen to all be in the fifth grade.

Carol Napier of Southside and Jay Daley of Beattyville Elementary have worked with their classes to identify students to train in the "HERE'S LOOKING AT YOU" program and to act as subject matter experts and mentors for the younger students.

Initial training needed to be accomplished. It has been at Southside with training beginning at Beattyville this week.

The first team of trainers, all from Southside, is comprised of three young ladies and two young men who start every school day either planning their program or executing it for their fellow students. They conduct multi-media presentations and are available throughout the day as subject matter experts.

By all indications, they are a big hit with the other students and have taken to this very visible leadership role with great imagination and dedication.

These young leaders are not waiting for adults to fix the problem, they are taking the opportunity to practice and demonstrate their skills and create positive change by tackling one of the greatest problems in our community, the drug abuse sub-culture.

Golf Scramble

By Austin Moore

Recently on September 28th, the Lee County High School Boys Basketball Team hosted the annual Golf Scramble at Lee County's Country Club. This is a fundraiser the Bobcats hold annually to pay for their gear for their upcoming season.

This fundraiser gives the members of the community a chance to go play golf and eat for a price of $25 each. The Bobcats made several hundred dollars including donations they received. Head coach Brian Johnson said, "It was a pretty successful event."

On behalf of the Lee County Board of Education, congratulations to the students and staff for the state testing results.

Kentucky
And the winner by a nose,
Kentucky newspapers!
Everybody knows that horse racing and Kentucky go together like peanut butter and jelly. Since 1875, the "Run for the Roses" has been an American tradition. On average, 150,000 people attend the festivities each May and another 1.43 million Kentuckians watch on TV. That's quite an audience! But did you know, the number of Kentuckians who read a newspaper this week beats the derby audience by a nose. Yep, 1.58 million adults read a Kentucky newspaper in print or online in the past week.
If you're a Kentucky newspaper reader, you're leading the pack! And if you're a Kentucky advertiser, remember that our state's newspapers bring it big down the stretch.

Eye to Eye
with David Blandford, M.D.

A SENSE OF DETACHMENT

Tiny specks drifting across your field of vision are "floaters" produced by shadows cast on the retina by pieces of the jelly-like substance (vitreous) that fills the eye. As aging causes the vitreous to liquefy and break apart, pieces of vitreous that do not liquefy appear as spots or lines. These may not be problematic in and of themselves, but the pulling of the vitreous on the retina can create traction on blood vessels, which leads to bleeding. If so, many floaters may begin to appear. In addition, it can cause tears in the retina, which may bring about the sudden onset of brief flashes of light. When these symptoms appear, it's time to seek immediate treatment for retinal detachment.

Are you experiencing floaters? The goal of KENTUCKY EYE INSTITUTE is to provide you with quality eye care while giving you the personal attention you deserve. As ophthalmologists, we are licensed and certified physicians with over a decade of intensive education and rigorous training, making us uniquely qualified to understand the health connections between the eye and the rest of the human body. We're located at 540 Jett Drive, where our training yields unrivaled expertise and efficiency in eye care. Please call 606-666-9393 to schedule an appointment. We specialize in "EYE CARE FOR ALL AGES."

P.S. Surgery is almost always required to repair a retinal tear, hole, or detachment.
